CornerHouse Dispatch

Vulnerable Adult Forensic Interview Training Update

Last year, CornerHouse launched a new Vulnerable Adult Forensic Interview Training. The training covers best practices in forensic interviewing and the CornerHouse Forensic Interview Protocol™, with a focus on application to interviewing vulnerable adults. Over the past year, we have continued to hone and improve this cutting edge training. The Vulnerable Adult Forensic Interview Training now incorporates more videos of interviews of vulnerable adults. The training also now includes more information and activities focused on a variety of abuse forms including sexual abuse, physical abuse, neglect, self-neglect, and financial exploitation. UPDATE: Reflections on Emerging Issues: Gender Identification

As a matter of practice, CornerHouse continuously reviews and assesses the numerous components and complexities of the CornerHouse Forensic Interview Protocol™. At times, a shift in knowledge or awareness creates the need to make an adjustment. Most recently, we have adjusted what was previously known as "Gender Identification." This change is consistent with best practice, and in keeping with the CornerHouse Guiding Principles of a person-centered, semi-structured and forensically sound approach. For complete information regarding this update, please read Anne Lukas Miller's "Reflections on Emerging Issues: Gender Identification."
