New Police Departments Join as CornerHouse Partners

Children and vulnerable adults who have reported abuse come to CornerHouse for forensic interviews and medical examinations. The staff at CornerHouse conducts interviews on behalf of police and child protective services to minimize the number of interviews and to promote a coordinated investigation. CornerHouse contracts with the Hennepin County Attorney's office, the Minneapolis Police Department, the Hennepin County Sheriff's Office and suburban Hennepin County law enforcement agencies.

When opened in 1989, CornerHouse was a joint effort of Hennepin County, the city of Minneapolis, and Minneapolis Children's Hospital. By 1991, ten police agencies had joined the collaborative effort. By 1996, the number reached twenty-five.

This number remained the same until 2007, when the University of Minnesota and Minnetrista Police Departments joined. The Sheriff's Office investigates crimes on behalf of smaller suburban police jurisdictions in the county. All Hennepin County law enforcement agencies that do child abuse investigations now have agreements with CornerHouse for the provision of forensic interviewing services. The Hennepin County Attorney's Office and the Minnesota Department of Public Safety also support the CornerHouse forensic services program. Agencies outside the county bring cases to CornerHouse on a fee for service basis.

The RATAC ® protocol developed by CornerHouse is research based. As a result, the interview is credible and legally defensible. Trial courts regularly recognize CornerHouse Forensic Interviewers as experts in the trial of child abuse cases. The CornerHouse Forensic Interviewers remain cutting edge professionals in part through the regular training of other professionals and research. Currently CornerHouse partners with the National District Attorneys Association and the Minnesota Department of Human Services to provide national and state training.

CornerHouse has always been a partnership, both in the services it provides and in its base of support. The team approach is promoted and supported both at the individual case level and system wide. Representatives of partner agencies meet monthly to review cases suggest areas for system improvement.

CornerHouse welcomes our new police partners.

CornerHouse Provides Training for the International Criminal Court

Above: Outside the International Criminal Court, (ICC).

Last Fall, CornerHouse staff Jennifer Anderson accompanied an international team of trainers from UNICEF to the International Criminal Court (ICC) in The Hague, The Netherlands. The ICC, known as a court of last resort, concerns itself only with cases not investigated or prosecuted by national judicial systems. Tried by the ICC are those accused of crimes such as genocide, crimes against humanity, and war crimes; among these crimes are those perpetrated against children.

The workshop “Children and the Investigative Process” was hosted by the ICC’s Office of the Prosecutor for its prosecutors and investigators. Perhaps the first formal training on children for any branch of the International Criminal Court, the workshop was designed to provide investigators with the necessary skills for working with children all over the world who are victims of and witnesses to crimes. The expertise of CornerHouse was sought to provide instruction on the topics of trauma and memory, the process of disclosure, and best practices as well as specific techniques, in forensic interviewing. The response to CornerHouse’s presentations was overwhelmingly positive; as one trainee noted, “[the] presentation was excellent – relevant, focused, practical and aimed for people that had prior knowledge (all of us).”

It was an honor for CornerHouse to be asked to train such an esteemed and committed group of professionals who are so clearly paladins of the world’s people, including its children.

April: Child Abuse Awareness Month

In April CornerHouse created the display in Hennepin County Government Center Gallery (A-Level) to promote Child Abuse Awareness Month. Highlighting the cost of child abuse, the display explains that the annual estimated costs of child abuse and neglect are approximately $94 billion in the United States.

The display uses data from Prevent Child Abuse America report "Total Estimated Cost of Child Abuse & Neglect in the United States" to illustrate the direct and indirect costs of child abuse and neglect. (www.preventchildabuse.org)

The report uses various statistical sources to put a dollar amount on everything from hospitalization of abused children (more than $6 billion), the cost of the child welfare system (an estimated $14 billion) and indirect costs, such as special education, since more than 20 percent of abused children require special education (an estimated $223 million).

The exhibit is free and open to the public Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Hennepin County Government Center, 300 S. 6th, Minneapolis.

Aside from the financial costs, this display also captures the cost in the lives of children.
